Silent Auction Tips

Arrive in time to get a good look at all the items and take part in good cheer!

You will be assigned an auction number. This will also be your number for the door prize drawings (you must be present to win).

Read about each item on its bid sheet and in this booklet.

Write your auction number and bid amount on the bid sheet for items you choose. Verify all slots are full before moving to the next $ amount.

Check your bid often; if the slots are full you can bid again by writing a higher number in the “price” column and your auction number in the adjacent slot. Make sure you are high bidder in each slot you want to win.

The silent auction items are color coded to end either at 7:45 (red) or 9:00 (blue). Look for the signs and listen for the announcements.

Live Auction

(also known as “not so silent auction”)

To bid on an item, hold up your auction number and call out the desired number of slots and your bid amount.

A demonstration in the first round of live auctions will help you see how to keep track of how many slots you have.

There will be several different sessions of bidding, so pace yourself!

Payment Policy

Please pay at night of auction...bring your checkbook,
Visa, or Mastercard.

All items MUST be paid for by December 15, 2013.

F-32 BRUU DrUUnks Winery Tour VII!

The DrUUnks winery tour is back! Your gracious host will again take you on an indulgent tour through Virginia's emergent wine country. This tour focuses on the Loudoun County region, and includes one old friend (8 Chains North) as well as two newcomers to the tour, North Gate Vineyards and Otium Cellars. Otium is particularly unusual as they're growing German reds and a Pinot Noir...in Virginia. Why January, you may ask? Because the vineyards are quiet; the winemakers are generous with their time, and we can get into places we couldn't get into if we tried to go in, say, August. This is the best time of all. Note: Vineyards may be changed based on their availability. 1/18/2014 Brian Pace Number: 8. Adults only Suggested value: $120. Minimum Bid: $50.
